KRAZY KRUSIER HALLOWEEN

The fun began on Thursday night when almost everyone arrived at the Emerald Desert RV Park in time to caravan to the Agua Caliente Casino. Once there, we signed up for game cards which gave us a $2.00 discount on the dinner at the Grand Palm Buffet. We were taken to a long table that accommodated our party of 18. We barely sat down before heading for the prime rib and shrimp buffet. So many choices, Teriyaki Chicken, Chinese ribs, Mexican tamales and rice, Italian pastas and pizzas. It was like a trip around the world. There was also a huge array of desserts from cookies to creme brulee. It was a wonderful night, but we all ate way too much!

On Friday afternoon we had a re-match of the girls vs. the guys bean bag baseball game in the clubhouse. The guys have won 2 years in a row, but this year the girls beat the pants off the guys. After the game all the players "won" a candy bar and the guys wore black arm bands in mourning for the rest of the day.

We gathered for happy hour and appetizers in our spooky clubhouse on Friday night and the weekend officially began. Theresa decorated the room and the tables with her great personal collection of Halloween goodies and piles of candy.

After breakfast on Saturday we went out into Palm Desert to explore the area. One favorite stop was the College of the Desert swap meet where we picked up some real bargains.

Then, it was back to the RV resort to pick up our pumpkins to carve for the contest. KrUISERS came prepared with special knives and designs so the competition was fierce this year. The Riha's, very ugly pumpkin won the first prize. They took home a bottle of Black Cat wine for their efforts.

Everyone arrived in costume for happy hour and dinner on Saturday night. What fun! We had the Flintstones, a bowl of spaghetti and a chef, a couple of fried eggs and bacon, some road kill and the Energizer Bunny just to name a few. The favorite male in costume was Dave Brown, in a beautiful brocade Renaissance costume. The winner of the favorite female costume was Cindy Phillips, who came as Dolly Parton. It was easy to see why she was a BIG favorite!

U lika my spaghetti!

Trisha and Jeff Newby won the prize for best couple. They came as a gangster and his flapper girl friend. It was really hard to pick the winners as all of the costumes were so terrific.

The winners each took home a bottle of special Halloween themed wine. Cheryl Braney did research on the computer and came up with wines with strange and silly names.

I'll make an offer you can't refuse.

After our delicious pot luck dinner we played BINGO. The beautiful Bingo cards we used were hand made by Theresa. We used M&M's and Skittles to mark our cards. The winners, who took home $20 each were, Dave Brown, Art Bjornestad, Carol Brown and Bob Walker. Jeanne Brown won two games and took home $40.

It was a great weekend. Thank you for your efforts Wagon Masters, John and Thresea O'Leary and Art Bjornestad.

Super What!!

INQUIRING MINDS WANT TO KNOW

Need something to keep the conversation flowing around the holiday table? Ask the following questions, and see who remembers what they learned in science class. Maybe you can even impress the grandkids!

Why is the sky blue?

The light that travels from our Sun to Earth contains every color there is. The Earth's air lets the blue light shine through the best. So, the sky appears to be blue. When the air is very wet after a rain, the light makes a rainbow with all of the colors. Beautiful sunsets happen when red light and blue light shine through together.
